*F*rom the president...

Carla Sims made an impressive and animated presentation on how she was persuaded to become involved in telemetry at Huntsville hospital. She was an English teacher and did not see herself becoming a nurse. 25 years later, Huntsville hospital had become one of the largest heart monitoring units in the south. Fast forward 10 more years, Huntsville Hospital now has big companies and hospitals wanting to come and see what's being taught.

Everyone who was a heart patient at Huntsville Hospital wore a heart monitor. The new heart monitors are from Phillips and look like a cell phone with a screen. The new ones became available last year. A patient's heartbeat will transmit on the screen right from your bedside. The heart monitors will tell the nurse exactly which heart lead is off and where it needs to go. If a patient is walking and has shortness of breath, the new heart monitor will tell the nurse that information also. Although new, the monitor didn't get lighter and the stickers still come off. The cost is $7000 per unit and Huntsville Hospital has 525 of these. The old ones cost $1500.

The new telemetry will track wherever the box is in the hospital. Not just heart patients wear these, but stroke and neuro patients wear these and if they leave the floor, monitors are notified. Nurses can find patients who go to the cafeteria. It holds 72 hours of data and will download to the individual physician's computer and he/she can monitor condition from any place and make changes if needed because a patient's heartbeat will show up on the physician's phone.

Join us Thursday, March 19th @ 6:30 for our program "9-1-1 What's your emergency". The speaker is Don Webster, HEMSI Ambulance Services. We meet in Room 119A, Dowdle Center on the corner of Gallatin and Governors Street.

Dr. Fredonia B. Williams, Chapter 260 Interim President

February was Heart Awareness Month but it was also the month for Heart Failure Awareness Campaign for 2020. The 2020 theme was "Know Your Why" and the efforts included reaching out to heart failure nurses, patients, and their families to raise awareness and emphasize heart failure patient education from an etiology-specific lens. The "Know Your Why" Resources included blood pressure education for patients and questions for patients to ask.

Why is it important to check my BP every day? What are my blood pressure goals? Why are my blood pressure goals different from other heart failure patients and patients who don't have heart failure?

Some people take blood pressure medications because their blood pressure needs to be lowered to prevent long term problems like heart attacks or stroke. Patients with heart failure may be given blood pressure medication to decrease the workload on the heart. For patients with certain types of heart failure, these same medicines have actually been shown to strengthen the heart! Research also shows that better effects come at higher doses, so expect your provider to try to adjust the amounts of your medications from time to time. The goal for blood pressure readings varies depending on the patient's needs, but overall providers aim to get blood pressure less than 130/80.

Taking your blood pressure every day and reporting side effects is very important. Patients should keep a daily log of their blood pressures and share the log with their heart failure team.

NOTE: Information provided by the Heart Failure Society of America

February 2019, our chapter speaker was Dr. Josh Valtos, Heart Center, Huntsville Hospital. He spoke about Heart Failure Medications and Challenges of Multiple Medications. According to Dr. Valtos, your chance of having a medication problem is increased if:

- You take 5 or more drugs.
- You take drugs for 3 or more health problems.
- You get prescriptions from more than one provider.
- You got prescriptions during a recent stay in the hospital.

The word for taking multiple medications is "polypharmacy". Patients should know the name and purpose of each medication that they are prescribed.

- ♦ Carry a list of your medications or bring your medicines with you to appointments
Sometimes the instructions on the bottle are not the same as your provider has instructed, i.e. sometimes when changing dosage of medicine
- ♦ Ask your provider the PURPOSE of medications.
- ♦ Ask your provider HOW to take your medications.
- ♦ Tell your provider if you are taking any non-prescription medicines
- ♦ Many medications have more than one effect.
- ♦ All medications have a brand name and a generic name.
- ♦ There are numerous and excellent medical treatment options available for heart failure.
- ♦ Taking your medications as prescribed and leading a healthy lifestyle offer the best chance to improve symptoms and prolong life.
- ♦ Remember, numerous perceived medication side effects may represent worsening heart failure.
When you have questions or concerns regarding your treatment, reach out to your provider for advice.

Seniors and sleep:

Changes may interrupt life-long sleep patterns. Some older people discover they become tired much earlier in the night and rise before dawn. This actually has a name: Advanced Sleep Phase Syndrome, according to the National Sleep Foundation. It shouldn't be especially alarming, but it can be annoying. The natural circadian rhythms that coordinate body functions advance in time with age, so people get plenty of sleep (from seven to eight hours) but everything happens earlier. Experts do not know why this happens, but they usually treat the issue with bright light therapy, exposing the body to light when it should be awake.

Then there is insomnia. About 44% percent of older persons can't sleep for a few nights per week. Insomnia can become chronic. Medical conditions can be responsible for insomnia. Among them snoring, a primary cause of sleep disruption for 90 million Americans. Snoring can be due to weight and aging. Very loud snoring can be a symptom of sleep apnea, associated with high blood pressure, among other things. Sleep apnea causes people to repeatedly wake up as they breathe, then stop breathing. It can and should be treated, doctors say.
